

CHILDREN WILL MARCH FOR LOAN

Show their Great Desire for New Building by Holding a Parade.

INTEREST IS NOW RISING

Presenting to Voters Arguments for the Loan which will Allow Erection of Modern Structure.

As a final plea for a new High School the girls and boys from all three buildings will hold a procession in Gettysburg Monday afternoon at the close of the day's sessions.

Tuesday the voters will be asked to ratify the proposed bond issue of $67,500 to provide for the erection of a modern high school, sufficiently large to fill the needs of the town for the next twenty five years. The pupils are a unit in wanting the structure and it is believed that their appeal will have much to do with swinging many votes.

In the general interest in the presidential campaign and national issues, sight has apparently been lost of the local project which confronts the voters of the three wards of Gettysburg. But those who are specially interested in the public schools, and who are best acquainted with the conditions there are now endeavoring to put before the people quickly and concisely the exact state of affairs, pointing out the urgent need for more and better accommodations.

As in other matters of local or general moment, The Times has taken no stand for or against the proposed new school building but its columns have, as always, been open to a free discussion of the question from both sides.

Yesterday there was presented a contributed article showing the crowded condition of the various rooms and just what may occur if the proposed bond issue is not authorized. To-day another contributed article outlines the question of the revenue derived from the tuition paid by out-of-town pupils and the possibility of losing that revenue if more accommodations are not provided.

The other newspapers of the town are giving similar space to these discussions and small pamphlets containing general information regarding the proposition will be put into every house of the town before Monday night, so that the voters may go to the polls fully acquainted with the matter which they are asked to consider.

The children themselves have been busy campaigners for the past few days and few fathers, indeed, who have sons or daughters in the public schools of town have failed to be approached in an effort to get them to vote "yes" on next Tuesday's ballot.

A general question asked is the probable location of the new building, if the bond issue is approved. So far as known, no site has been considered, that matter being held over entirely until it is seen whether or not the building may be put up.

This evening at 5:45 the High School Alumni Association will meet at the High School building to draw up resolutions regarding the proposed bond issue. These resolutions will then be placed before the voters.

CAR DITCHED

Thrown against Tree by Driver of Another Machine.

In a mix-up on the York pike near Guldens this morning in which three cars of a popular make were concerned, one was ditched, the offending car sped on, and the third escaped injury. The one car had Dr. E. H. Markley and S. Miley Miller as passengers. They were coming toward Gettysburg and passed a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Reese, of York, who had spent the night in Gettysburg. As Mr. Reese turned back into the middle of the road the third car attempted to go around him from behind and struck with sufficient force to throw the York machine into a locust tree at the side of the road.

The car which struck him was driven ahead, but it is said, the owner is known and efforts are being made to secure some settlement. Mrs. Reese was badly shaken up and George Dutera, who lives near the scene of the accident, took her and Mr. Reese to a New Oxford physician who gave the necessary attention. The Reese car was badly damaged.

PUBLIC SQUARE IN EAST BERLIN

See Opportunity for Beautifying Town since Property is Bought.

The old frame building in East Berlin, known for the past fifty years as the Shaffer House, and for several generations used as a hotel, has been purchased by a party of men, the purchase price being $2400. It is said that the building will be torn down, and this gives rise to an agitation in the town to provide a public square. A communication in this week's issue of the East Berlin News says in part:

"The people are anxiously awaiting announcement of a plan for the construction here of the grand square or plaza which should have been laid out by the founder of the village in 1764.

"Perhaps the plan will impose upon the taxpayers the expense of securing the other three corners upon which have been erected the Sunday House, the Peoples Bank, and the buildings occupied by Harry Miller, N. B. Sprengle and J. M. Rider.

"The expense of this improvement will be considerable, but our borough will have to assume it, if it desires to have a grand square in the proper place.

"The decision now made will determine whether we shall have a square here where it should have been for 150 years.

"There are several other suitable places for squares in our town, one on the hill at the Deininger property, another at the top of the hill on Abbottstown street, but neither of these would be so acceptable to our taxpayers, as this at the crossing of the great highways."

KILLED BIG BUCK

Turkeys and Many Rabbits are Taken across Mountains.

Some one shot a large buck near Hustontown in Fulton county, cut out a piece of the flank weighing about ten pounds and left the carcass to decay. Warden Miller was advised and went to the place. The carcass was so much decayed in the meantime that it was useless and was buried. Had it been fit to eat it would have been sent to a hospital.

The hotel at Fort Loudon is crowded with hunters from Philadelphia, Downingtown, Lancaster and Elizabethtown.

They report bags of several turkeys, some wild ducks, and a great quantity of rabbits.

Game Warden Miller, of Fort Loudon, has secured two members of the State police who are assisting him in Fulton County.

LICENSE TRANSFERRED

Owner of Hotel Will Make Improvements to Place.

The license of the Wabash Hotel, Baltimore street, was transferred to Mrs. Lydia F. Hughes, owner of the premises. Mrs. Hughes will make numerous improvements and put the property in first class condition.

LIFTED BAN ON THE ICE CREAM

Harrisburg Product has been well Cleared of Dangerous Bacilli.

The ban on Harrisburg ice cream which was said to have been almost entirely responsible for the typhoid fever epidemic in Harrisburg and vicinity was lifted to-day.

This action follows the latest report of the city bacteriologist in which the frozen product was found to have been clear of disease bacilli.

The typhoid epidemic is now abated to such an extent that there is said to be nothing more to fear. Nearly 500 cases were reported in Harrisburg since the middle of August. More than half this number were reported in the county districts. Nearly two months ago Dr. Rgumick asked residents of Harrisburg to refrain from eating ice cream.

In the bi-monthly milk and cream report for the period ending October 31, issued by Dr. Raunick, a great improvement is shown over all previous samples taken and examined since the typhoid fever epidemic started.

The milk report shows that there were twenty five samples taken during the last half of October and of this number nineteen were found to be free from all bacilli, while the remaining six specimens contained colon bacilli ranging from 500 to 3,800. In the ice cream report the results from eight samples are shown. Six of these specimens were found to be clean, while the remaining two contained colon bacilli. One of these two samples was condemned and confiscated.

TO DONATE $5000

Will Give Money if Taxes are Increased after Saloons Go.

Frederick county is the center of the hottest wet and dry fight in Maryland. It is predicted that the county will vote out all saloons next Tuesday.

In a signed paid statement in the town newspapers Joseph D. Baker, president of the Citizens' National Bank, obligates himself to "pay to any charitable institution in Frederick county, at any time in the next five years it may name, the sum of $5000, in case prohibition is put into effect in the whole county, and the tax rate of the county is increased on the account of the loss of the saloon, the payment to be made when the above fact is certified to in writing by the board of county commissioners."

Mr. Baker argues that if saloons are wiped out property values will increase in the neighborhood of old saloon sites, and property will be assessed at higher figures, thus increasing the tax income.

TWO HURT WHEN AUTO HITS TRAIN

After Spending Evening with East Berlin Friends, Have Narrow Escape.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER

After Striking Train Motorists Try to Free themselves when Engineer Backs Cars.

Returning from a visit with friends in East Berlin John H. Welk and his daughter, Miss Grace Welk, both of York, were injured when an automobile in which they were riding collided with a freight train on the Western Maryland railroad at the Thomasville grade crossing, about 6:30 o'clock Friday evening. Miss Welk is suffering from painful lacerations on her forehead and chin and an injury to her left arm. Mr. Welk sustained internal injuries.

According to the story told by Mr. Welk, he and his daughter were returning from East Berlin. When they arrived in Thomasville there were no street lights and the darkness prevented Mr. Welk, who was driving the machine, from seeing the freight train which blocked the crossing. When six feet from the crossing Mr. Welk saw the train and immediately applied the brakes and stopped the engine of the automobile. Although traveling at a moderate rate of speed his efforts could not prevent a collision.

Mr. Welk's machine struck the sixth car from the rear and the train continued to move forward. As the last car passed the front of the automobile fell upon the track. The engineer apparently did not know that a collision had occurred and started to back. When the moving train was within a short distance of the automobile, which was partly upon the track, one of the members of the train crew saw the plight of the autoists and applied the air brakes which brought the train to a stop.

When the automobile hit the train Miss Welk was thrown forward against the windshield and her father was pinned against the steering wheel. Miss Welk was in a dangerous position as the side of the automobile which she occupied was within a few inches of the box cars, and as they passed the iron of the car struck the side of the auto. Her father, realizing the danger, pulled his daughter over to the side of the machine he occupied and prevented her from being seriously injured.

Mr. Welk and his daughter were taken to the office of Dr. E. S. Stambaugh, of Thomasville, where their injuries were dressed. They were later removed to their home. Their injuries are not serious.

NEED NOT REPAIR

State Highway Department Upheld by Court in Refusal.

According to an opinion handed down by Judge George Kunkel in a case arising in Northampton county, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is required to repair and maintain highways incorporated in the State system by authority of the Acts of 1911-13 only in cases where the Commonwealth formally takes over this duty and assumes responsibility for the care and maintenance of the road in question and not necessarily at the time the roads become integrate parts of the State highway system.

The opinion refuses the request of the Northampton County Commissioners for a mandamus on the State Highway Department to compel the State to construct and maintain the road leading from Nazareth to Bethlehem.

FINAL DAY OF THE CAMPAIGN

Services Begin Sunday Morning at Six O'clock. The Evening Meeting.

Trail Hitters last night 0
Attendance last night 800
Trail Hitters to date 357
Attendance to date 46,600

To-morrow will mark the close of the evangelistic campaign which has been conducted in Gettysburg for the past five weeks. The services will begin in all the co-operating churches at six o'clock in the morning when sunrise meetings will be held. Sunday School will be held at the usual time at these churches and then all the congregations will go to the tabernacle for a union service at 10:30.

In the afternoon at 2:30 Mr. Nicholson will preach in the tabernacle to men on "Hell", and at the same time there will be a service for women in St. James church. The concluding service of the campaign will begin at seven o'clock in the evening and likely continue until after the midnight hour, the final meeting being unusual in character.

Last evening's service brought no responses to the call to come forward. The text of the evangelist's sermon was "Almost Thou Persuadest Me to Become a Christian." He named pride, prejudice, and sin as the three principal reasons for persons refusing to accept Christ. The appeal for trail hitters was made from the platform alone, no personal work being done among the audience.

This evening the teachers and officers of the various Sunday Schools will be guests at supper in St. James social rooms. At half past seven there will be the usual service in the tabernacle and Mr. Nicholson's subject will be "The Pale Horse and its Rider."

FINE CORN

1700 Bushels of Great Ears on Less than 10 Acres.

Some of the best corn ever raised in this district is on the farm of C. F. Myers, along the York Pike, between Abbottstown and Thomasville. Great ears a foot long and ten inches in circumference, and some even fourteen inches long, are observed among the many bushels in the cribs. Mr. Myers' crop of seventeen hundred bushels was raised on a little less than ten acres of ground.

Two stalks of corn measuring fourteen and a half feet in height are fastened in an upright position to the trunk of a tree in front of the Myers barn. These stalks are said to be fair specimens of the crop.

TWO CASES

One Held for Court while Another is Released.

Fred Parker, who was arrested earlier in the week after having created a disturbance in the Third Ward, was given a hearing before Squire Hill on Friday and held for court in default of bail.

Bruce Tonsil, who was arrested several days ago after a racket with his wife, who is employed at the Lincoln Way Hotel, has been discharged by the authorities.

REPUBLICANS' MASS MEETING

POINTS OUT WEAK SPOTS

Secretary Baker's Alleged Comparison Dwelt upon. No Danger of Getting into War.

The third of the series of mass meetings in the interest of the various political parties was held Friday evening in Brua Chapel when Thomas P. Crago, congressman-at-large, outlined the Republican policies and voiced unstinted criticism of the present administration.

The college boys with their band paraded about town before the meeting and at the chapel Dr. G. D. Stahley acted as chairman. Dr. A. E. Wagner was elected to preside, and Raymond F. Topper Esq. introduced Mr. Crago who said in part.

"The Democratic party is on trial, and in spite of what they say to try to blind the voters, it is the same old economic clash.

"After they tried their economic policy they reach out and try to fool the people by strange doctrines unheard of before. When Wilson was elected in 1912 he said, 'If you elect me I shall pursue a policy of pitiless publicity.' But have we had an administration of pitiless publicity? Do we know anything of the real action in Mexico? Why we went to Vera Cruz, lost many lives, spent much money, and then came back? We know nothing of the true condition of affairs in Mexico except that which soldiers returning from the front tell us.

"Does anybody know why the embargo on arms into Mexico was lifted soon after Mr. Wilson became president? The same arms that were soon afterward turned against our own soldiers.

"Another claim made in 1912 was that the high cost of living produced by the protective tariff would be much lowered. But the cost of living was not reduced. Nine months after the bill was passed the imports amounted to $140,000,000. There was no reduction of foodstuffs to the consumer. In 1914 millions of men were out of work. Mills were idle. It was the normal condition in Democratic times. Congress was forced to pass a stamp tax and an income tax.

"Very often appropriations were made by the administration for small towns in the South of not more than 400 or 500 population. Buildings of such size were erected in these towns that in some cases one floor was sufficiently large to hold all of the people that lived there as well as some of the animals. The reason given for such appropriations was that all of the larger towns were already provided for. An appropriation bill signed by Mr. Wilson calls for $7,000,000 for improvements of rivers in North Carolina. These North Carolina rivers are, as many know, merely creeks.

"Tariff is one of the big issues. Another is Americanism. We must assure protection to Americans at land and on sea. We must also have protection among ourselves."

Mr. Crago then followed with a severe denunciation of the comparison recently alleged to have been made by Secretary Baker, in which he likened Villa's men to Washington's patriots, and said that we should "not continue in an administration of this kind."

"The Democrats say, 'He kept us out of war.' Out of what war has Wilson kept us? England, France and the allies are dependent on the United States and do not wish to break with us. Germany cannot make war as she is hemmed in. There has never been any chance of our getting into the great war.

"Last June delegates of the Republican party met in Chicago and nominated for president of these United States a true American. Let us, next Tuesday, elect to this important post a man in whom we can safely repose our trust, Charles Evans Hughes."

CIVIL WAR FLAMES FORTH IN GREECE

Revolutionists and Loyalists
Fight in Thessaly.

30,000 IN REBEL ARMY

The Venizelists Seize a Port and
Are Marching on Great Railroad Center.

London, Nov. 4.—Civil war has broken out in Greece.

Heavy fighting is in progress between Venizelist revolutionary forces and loyalist troops in Thessaly. A rebel army has occupied Katerina and is reported to be marching on Larissa, the great railroad center in Thessaly. (Katerina is on the gulf of Salonika, forty-five miles southwest of that city.)

Despatches from Athens say that King Constantine is taking military measures for the protection of the Greek capital.

Soldiers have been placed at the disposal of the German embassy. An armed guard now surrounds the building.

The Venizelist army, which numbers 30,000, is well equipped. It was supplied with arms and ammunition by the allies to be used against Bulgaria.

London newspapers bitterly criticize the allied military authorities in Greece for allowing King Constantine to send troops over the Piraeus-Larissa railway to reinforce the loyalist forces fighting the revolutionists in Thessaly. It was pointed out that this railway line has already been taken over by the allies for their exclusive use.

PARRAL CAPTURED BY VILLA BANDITS

Safety of Americans Causes
Anxiety.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 4.—Francisco Villa has captured Parral, and the entire Carranza garrison, numbering more than 2000 men, has enlisted under his leadership, according to refugees who arrived at Juarez, just across the border from Chihuahua City.

General Herrera, the commandant at Parral, and several officers are reported to have been killed. News of the fate of nine Americans known to have been in Parral is anxiously awaited. It is feared that they may have been killed in fulfillment of Villa's reported vow to shoot all Americans on whom he can lay his hands.

According to information given out by the Alvarado Mining company, the company had four American officials and employees in Parral.

Villistas again are cutting the ear from captive Carranza soldiers, and sending them back to their commands as a warning to other Carranza soldiers, said a Mexican civilian refugee who arrived from Jimenez, Chihuahua. He said he had seen sixteen Carranza soldiers at Jimenez with their ears cut from their heads.

ITALIANS RENEW DRIVE ON TRIESTE

Take Duino in Offensive on Austrian Port.

BATTLE GROWS IN FURY

Whole Regiment Annihilated When Tעות Trenches Are Penetrated on Two-Mile Front.

Rome, Nov. 4.—Consecutive waves of Italian infantry are crashing against the Austrian lines south of Gorizia in one of the most powerful blows struck by General Cadorna since Italy entered the war.

The battle is extending southward to the Adriatic. The Italians are attacking Austrian lines northwest of Duino, an important railway point called by some military writers the key to Trieste.

An unconfirmed report reached Rome that Duino had been captured by the Italians.

The opinion prevails that General Cadorna is preparing to strike a death blow.

Heavy losses were inflicted upon the Austro-Hungarians in the first stage of the new offensive, which began on Wednesday. Official despatches say that the Twenty-first Regiment of Austro-Hungarian Landwehr troops was completely annihilated.

Austro-Hungarian losses in the battles southeast of Gorizia on Wednesday are estimated at 20,000 by the correspondent of the "Messaggero" at the front. The despatch adds that 100 Austro-Hungarian battalions took part in the fighting.

The Austro-Hungarian lines were pierced at several points on the Carso plateau. At one point the Italians penetrated a mile and a half across a front of two miles.

Seven infantry brigades and two regiments of Bersaglieri were thrown against the Austro-Hungarian positions southeast of Gorizia. The attacks were particularly directed against Hills Nos. 367 and 368, both of which were captured by storm.

Following up the first attacks, however, the Italians encountered some more difficult ground and the infantry actions ceased to give the artillery a chance to pound the hostile lines further.

The Italian bombardment that preceded the first assaults began on Wednesday morning, says an official despatch from the front. Massed batteries along the Castagnavizza-San Grado line poured a devastating fire against the Austro-Hungarian positions over a six-mile front. This shelling continued until 4:30 in the afternoon, when reconnoitering parties went out to ascertain the extent of damage done to the hostile works along the Lovica-Hadlitz-Castagnavizza roads. The cannonade was then resumed, and continued all night, being especially heavy around Hill No. 202.

HAD LOADED SHELLS

Pennsylvania Guard Came Near Firing
Deadly Charge Into Comrades.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 4.—With their field guns loaded with shrapnel instead of blanks the First Pennsylvania Field Artillery was about to open fire into the ranks of 14,000 national guardsmen during a sham battle at Camp Sherman, El Paso, when the mistake was discovered.

The troops were ready for the "attack" to begin when Major William Lambdin ordered an inspection of the ammunition which had been served out to the troops. It then was discovered that the Pennsylvanians had real instead of dummy shells. The matter was reported to General Funston, and an investigation has been ordered.

BRITISH ADVANCE AT GUEUDECOURT

French Occupy Fort Vaux and Verdun.

London, Nov. 4.—British troops captured a German trench east of Gueudecourt on the Somme front and raided German trenches near Arras, says the British war office announcement.

Fort Vaux is again in French hands and with Douaumont already regained the ring of offensive fortification about Verdun has been re-established.

Paris reports the occupation of Fort Vaux, evacuated during Wednesday night by the Germans. This move, the French official statement declares, was effected without loss to the French, who waited until the series of explosions inside the fort had ceased before they advanced, unopposed, to take possession of it.

On the Somme front, Berlin admits the loss by the Germans of portion of the village of Sully-Saillist that they had taken from the French, but announces the repulse of British attacks east of Gueudecourt and of the French advances on the northern part of St. Pierre-Vaast wood.

Millville Man Strikes Deposit 80
Feet Down.

Millville, N. J., Nov. 4.—After sinking a pipe 80 feet, Lewis Steelman struck oil on his estate four miles east of Millville in the depths of a big forest.

Experts who were here several months ago assured Steelman that there was oil on the property, and he built a derrick and struck a deposit which is believed will yield twenty-five barrels daily.

Steelman is not satisfied with the strike, however, and will go many feet lower. To protect himself from prospectors who might drain his well, Steelman has bought hundreds of acres of forest land surrounding his property.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

Further Discussion on Financial End of the Proposed School Loan. Contribution.

(Contributed)

All objections to a new school building, as far as heard, have largely grown out of a lack of knowledge of the conditions, or because of some misunderstanding or misapprehension of the situation.

There are those who think that the out of town pupils have brought about the crowded condition. There are no out of town pupils in Meade Grammar School and none in the High Street Building, and both are crowded beyond what is fair to the pupils and teachers. The out of town pupils attend High School and simply add to the condition there, for that department would be up to the limit of things without them.

There can be no intelligent objection to these out of town pupils. They come from districts having no High Schools and the law compels these districts to send the children to High Schools in other districts whenever the child desires to go. The law is eminently fair in this in making possible a High School education for the country boy and girl equal to that of the town boy and girl receive. No community would be true to itself in refusing to give what the law has provided for.

These out of town pupils create quite a little business of their own for this community. Last year the schools of this town received over $1500 from this source. The income from this source this year at the same rate as last year, will bring the schools an income of $1958, and if the rate is slightly raised on account of the increased cost of operating the schools, this item will likely go to a total of over $2400, which is four per cent on sixty thousand dollars. Bear in mind that the proposed debt for a new school building is a four per cent debt and it is entirely well within the actual prospects and growth of our schools, that before any building could be erected and occupied that the income from out of town pupils will be equal to the interest on the debt occasioned by the erection of the building.

The prosperity of a community is often to be measured by the territory immediately adjacent that supports that town.

There could be no better way for a town to create a supporting community surrounding it than by furnishing to that surrounding territory part of its educational advantages. The children who go to the High Schools of this place will always remember their school days here, it will form a bond to tie them to this place. It will be the bond as they go back to their townships to bring them here to buy and trade and give our business the support of their activities. A town needs all the friends it can build up for its various avenues of trade and business and there could be no better and healthier way to get it than to help in the education of the citizenship that will surround and support the town.

These out of town pupils present another point of view to be considered. Many stay in town from Monday morning until Friday evening and for the nine months of the school year board and lodge in the town and give our people a business in so providing for them. This has been a growing business in recent years and one that is bound to increase as our schools are made better, for the country boys and girls will want to go to the best High School in the county, and that should be at Gettysburg.

Contemplate for a moment what a calamity it would be if the town could not give these out of town pupils the advantages of a High School education. There would always remain with them the memory that either we could not or would not give them the High School training desired, and that memory would always have a tendency to keep him or her away from this town, and only business that could not be done elsewhere would be done here. Gettysburg would pay a frightful price if any course was adopted to prevent out of town pupils from coming here. They must be encouraged and welcomed, any other course would be business suicide.

The Changes Time Brings.

An exchange wants to know what has become of the old-fashioned man who used to lend his neighbor a ham to do until he killed his hogs. He couldn't afford to do this any more unless the neighbor would give bond.

SERIOUS RUNAWAY

Woman is Seriously Hurt When Carriage Breaks.

Thrown from a runaway when the front axle of the conveyance broke, Mrs. Mervin Leinert, a resident of the Pigeon Hills, was seriously injured Friday evening, sustaining a scalp wound two inches in length and bruises about her hip, knee and other parts of the body. Mrs. Emory Kessler and daughter, Esther, of Porters, were also occupants of the carriage, but although precipitated to the roadside when the runaway dropped, they escaped injury.

Mrs. Leinert went to Spring Grove during the afternoon to meet Mrs. Kessler and her daughter, who were on their way to pay a visit to Mrs. Kessler's father, Theodore Altland. The accident occurred while on their way to the Altland home. When the axle snapped Mrs. Kessler and her daughter were the first to drop from the team.

The animal was captured a quarter mile distant, by William Rudisill. The occupants of the team were removed to the Altland home in the automobile of Frank Hoke.

A Thomasville physician who was called to the Altland residence, sewed a number of stitches into the scalp wound sustained by Mrs. Leinert.

TOOK AWAY HIS BREATH.

When Davison Heard Morgan Wanted Him For a Partner.

"Mr. Morgan wants to see you in his library at 3 o'clock," was the message received one day by the vice president of a New York bank.

He hadn't the slightest idea what the veteran financier could want with him. He had met Mr. Morgan, as most other financiers had, during the parlous days when the master mind of them all was trying to stem the 1907 panic, but had not seen anything of Mr. Morgan until the spring of the following year when, with Senator Aldrich and other members of the monetary commission, he had spent a Sunday at Mr. Morgan's London home. Between then and the receipt of the above message in the fall of 1908 he had seldom spoken to Mr. Morgan.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the young banker, wondering what the matter could be, rang the bell of the famous Morgan library. On being ushered in he almost collided with Mr. Morgan at the entrance to his private room.

Mr. Morgan shook hands and bade the puzzled visitor be seated. "Do you realize it is pretty near the 1st of January?" he asked. The young banker, very much at sea, agreed that it was. This was about the middle of November.

"Are you ready?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"Ready for what?" queried the astonished visitor.

"For what?" echoed Mr. Morgan.

"You know I want you to come and join my firm on the 1st of January."

"You never said anything about it, Mr. Morgan."

"I thought you knew by my expression what I thought of you," said Mr. Morgan.

"Mr. Morgan, have you ever fallen from an eighteen story building?"

It was Mr. Morgan's turn to be astonished.

"No," he replied, scrutinizing his visitor.

"Well, I never have before, and it will take me a minute or two to catch my breath."

Mr. Morgan laughed.

And that was how Henry P. Davison, then only forty, was notified of his selection as a partner in the greatest international banking firm in the United States.—B. C. Forbes in Leslie's.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

They Are Not Compelled to Vote For Their Party Candidate.

A presidential elector is an independent agent. As a matter of practice he votes for the candidate chosen at the convention of his party, but he can legally break the instruction, just as a delegate to that convention could have done.

There have been a number of instances in our history where this has been done.

Hence if a presidential candidate were to die the day before the election all the states would on the following day vote for their two sets of presidential electors in the routine way.

These presidential electors who are chosen in November are obliged to meet in the various states on the second Monday in January following. That is the day the president of the United States is actually chosen.

These electors were intended to be free agents and to act as they deemed best is plainly inferred by the twelfth amendment to the constitution of the United States. It says:

"They shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and of all persons voted for as vice president."

When that amendment was adopted after the Jefferson-Burr battle of 1801 there had never been any political conventions and the presidential electors of the various states were expected to form as many conventions and there to choose a president.

In practice the presidential electors act merely as automatons. They permit the national conventions to do their thinking. If one of the candidates selected by the national conventions were to die just prior to election day the national committee of that party would some time after the election and prior to the second Monday in January designate a candidate.

That recommendation would carry all the weight of a national convention. But in neither case is the recommendation binding.

Since national conventions were first held in Andrew Jackson's time no presidential candidate has died before the election.

When Van Buren was elected president no one was elected vice president. The United States senate then exercised its prerogative and elected R. M. Johnson vice president.

A presidential elector in a New England state refused to follow his party and vote for James Monroe "just so he could not be unanimously elected, as was George Washington."

Eleven states did not vote at all for president in 1804. In 1808 three states that had tried to secede could not vote.

In 1880 one of California's presidential electors who had been chosen by the Democrats refused to vote for Hancock. That state therefore gave Garfield one elector and Hancock five.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Where the Ark Rested.

We struggled painfully through the mud and at sunrise on the fourth day came in sight of Mount Ararat from the hilltop above Erivan. A more imposing sight I never saw than this huge snow clad hump, with its attendant peaked gendarme at its side. Though the ranges on each side of it are 6,000 feet high, it seems to rise alone from the plain and looms so large as to absolutely annihilate the great level plain, thirty miles across, which separates you from it. Heavy snowstorms had ranged over it for weeks, and the snow was lying to within 6,000 feet of sea level. The summit is represented in the latest surveys to be nearly 20,000 feet above the sea, so there were 14,000 feet of snow lying on it, and the shining mass seemed to rise and soar into the blue sky from beneath our very feet.—Professor Conybeare in New Armenia.

One of the mercenary marriages once common in England which turned out happily was that of the second Duke of Richmond. He was married to Lady Sarah Cadogan as part of an agreement that her father's gambling debts should be canceled. Lord March was then was being eighteen and the bride only thirteen.

Immediately after the wedding Lord March's tutor took him off to the continent for the grand tour, and Lady Sarah went back to her nursery. This is the sequel as told by Lady Russell in "The Rose Goddess."

Three years elapsed. Lord March returned from his travels, but, having such an uninteresting recollection of his bride, was in no hurry to claim her and went the first evening of his return to London to the opera. There he noticed that all eyes—and longnettes—were directed to one box, where, surrounded by several persons, sat a most

THE ICEBERG PERIL

WORK OF THE PATROL FLEET.

These Cutters, Under International Compact, Scour the Ice Zone Each Spring and Notify the World of Conditions in the Infested Area.

After the loss of the giant White Star liner Titanic in April, 1912, by striking an iceberg there was much discussion in Europe and America as to the possibility of adopting measures to lessen the likelihood of such disasters in future. An "international conference for the saving of life at sea," which was held at London, resulted among other things, in an undertaking by the principal marine powers of the world to maintain an ice patrol on the north Atlantic from February to June in each year.

It was agreed that this ice patrol should be carried out by the United States on behalf of the various countries represented, the cost to be borne by them pro rata. Britain to pay 25 per cent of the total; Germany, France and the United States 15 per cent each and Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Italy, Holland, Norway, Russia and Sweden from 4 to 2 per cent each.

The American authorities inaugurated this patrol service with the naval scout cruisers Birmingham and Chester, but later assigned the revenue cutter Seneca and Miami to this duty, which ships have since continued it. The first season St. John's was chosen for the work, but ultimately it was found more convenient to utilize Halifax, Nova Scotia, because the area patrolled was south of St. John's and extended farther south as the season advanced and the armadas of icebergs became more numerous.

Each cutter patrols the ice region for fifteen days. It is a three day run from Halifax to the ice zone, with a return voyage of about the same duration. The ships arrange their movements by wireless communication, so that the service is absolutely continuous. Daily bulletins of the fogs and bergs seen and of the trend of the fog infested areas are furnished by wireless to the hydrographic offices in the capitals of the countries contributing to the upkeep of this service, and warnings are also sent by wireless telegraph to all steamers plying in the berg strewn sections.

Each season the patrol ships are adding to the stock of knowledge regarding the ice area, and the results of their investigations are published in the official records; but, as is too often the case, the world gets to know very little of them. Among some of the conclusions reached is that under ordinary conditions it is possible to see an iceberg twelve to fifteen miles from the ship's bridge, about an extra mile from the crew's nest, and still another mile from the signal yard on the foremast.

In especially clear weather bergs may be seen from eighteen to twenty miles, but on a cloudy day, with good visibility, a deduction of about two miles must be made. With the searchlight it is possible to see an iceberg about two miles on a dimly moonlit night and about three miles when the moon sets.

Another weighty fact for mariners is that it is possible for lookouts on very large ships to be higher than the top of a small berg, so that on a dark night these observers would have an unbroken view of the horizon over the top of a "growler," or low lying berg, half a mile or a mile away, and thus easily miss seeing the obstruction until too late to avoid it.

A theory exploded by the ice patrol ships is that the proximity of ice is marked by a notable lowering of air temperature. Experiments covering three years have proved that such is not the case and that, as a rule, there is little or no change in the temperature of the air near an iceberg. Equally fallacious is the idea that the presence of a berg is denoted by a lowering of the temperature of the water. As a matter of fact, the very contrary is the case.

Other theories, as that echoes indicate the presence of bergs, that ice discloses itself through what is known as the "ice blink" and that submarine "ears" on ships will reveal the nearness of ice by its peculiar motion through the waves, have been proved equally unfounded. In truth, the testimony of the commanders of these patrol ships is that the only safe way to navigate regions of icebergs is to stop during thick weather and to run very slowly on dark nights.

The outstanding fact, therefore, with regard to this ice patrol service is that it is markedly effective in lessening the danger to ships traversing the ice zone by the warnings which it sends out from day to day, which enable passing vessels to give a wide berth to these obstructions. But the problem of detecting ice in the immediate vicinity of a steamer has not yet been satisfactorily solved.—P. T. McGrath in American Review of Reviews.

A Brush For the Laundry.

A great deal of wear on clothes can be saved by the use of a small hand brush. Instead of rubbing the clothes on the washboard, lay the soiled spot on the board, rub well with soap and scrub with the brush. This method is easier on the hands as well as on the clothes.

Drinking Water With

Meals Aids Digestion.

Occasionally one hears conflicting assertions in regard to the wholesomeness of the practice of drinking water at meal time, these assertions being often based upon hearsay or unfounded impressions, says Inga M. K. Allison of Colorado Agricultural college. Somewhat recent physiological studies indicate that, while the drinking of water with meals has no apparent effect upon the utilization of the fats, sugars and starches, its copious use does result in the better digestion and absorption of the ingested protein, that tissue building constituent which is the most abundant of the solids in lean meat, eggs and cheese and that constituent which also characterizes certain other foods.

The conclusion to be arrived at, then, is that the use of water as a beverage with meals is a desirable practice. It may be added that drinking generous quantities of water during the course of the day is an important health measure in the upkeep of the general health of the body.

An unfortunate eating habit is that of depending upon water as an aid to swallowing food. If one has not learned to thoroughly masticate food, swallowing it without the aid of a beverage, then it would seem wise to subscribe to the creed of the "dry eaters."

Worth Knowing

Freshening Clothes.—When clothes are unpacked and full of creases hang on a line in the bathroom, close the windows and doors and let the hot water run until the room is steamed. The creases will disappear. Let the clothes air before being hung in closets.

A Pineapple Hint.—When cutting pineapple much of the good fruit adheres to the stalk and is wasted. So after removing outer rind do not cut in slices, as usual, but hold the pineapple by the top and shred the fruit away from the stalk. Very little is wasted in this way, and less sugar is required to sweeten.

Washing White Silk.—White silk gloves and white crepe de chine waists should be washed in tepid water. After washing and rinsing and squeezing (not wringing) crepe de chine should be rolled in a Turkish towel for an hour or so and then ironed with a medium hot iron on the wrong side. Silk gloves should be dried in the dark.

STAFF OF LIFE NO MORE?

To Make Bread White Value Is Milled Out of Flour, Complaints Say.
Complaints that the public sacrifices nutriment in bread to appearances and that flour manufacturers mill the food value out of flour in order to produce whiteness were forwarded to the department of agriculture by Miss Florence Kling, president of the Woman's Association of Commerce, who is seeking to have flour included in the application of the new grain inspection act.

Woman Loses Style by Adopting Dress Novelties

The slavish following of fashion does not make the well dressed woman. In the opinion of Florence L. Hunt, assistant in domestic art in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

By taking up the fads and novelties in dress a woman loses style and becomes merely stylish. She defeats the purpose of true style, which is to be inconspicuous, and becomes noticeable by the very means she takes to look well.

The well dressed woman selects materials and modes that are conservative, skillfully adapting fashion to her needs, so that her clothes are in style as long as they last instead of just for a season.

In this way one may not only look well, but may help in reducing the high cost of living, since faddish things often cost many times their real value. The merchant is obliged to charge several times the cost price on articles that are likely to have a short popularity in order to pay for those left on his hands when they are out of fashion.

U-57 TO CONVOY DEUTSCHLAND

Submarine Will Escort U-Liner on Way Home.

IS EXPECTED AT ONCE

Under Water Merchantman Discharges
Her Cargo—To Sail Within Ten Days.

New London, Conn., Nov. 4.—The German armored submarine, U-57, sister ship of the U-53, which recently sank five vessels off the New England coast, is expected to act as a convoy for the undersea freighter Deutschland on her return trip to Germany, according to a statement by Captain Paul Koenig.

The Deutschland's skipper added: "I would not be surprised if the armored submarine appeared off this coast while I am in port. You can't tell what the government will do." In answer to questions, Captain Koenig said he probably would make his homeward dash within the next ten days. He denied a report that he would go through the Cape Cod canal, saying nothing could be gained by this route.

Officials of the Eastern Forwarding company announced the Deutschland's cargo was discharged. Great care was exercised to prevent outsiders from seeing the work.

Only the crews of the submarine and the North German Lloyd liner Wilhelm were allowed in the hold. They passed the freight out to negro stevedores who stored it in the ware houses.

Vice President Hilken, of the Forwarding company, for New York. Nothing has been made public concerning the Deutschland's manifest. James L. McGovern, collector of customs, is out of town. He sent a special delivery letter to Captain Koenig but the latter declined to comment on its contents.

The citizens' committee, which arranged for a complimentary banquet to the Deutschland's crew Wednesday announced a gold watch, suitably inscribed, will be presented to Captain Koenig.

TO LET U-LINER CARRY MAIL

Under-Sea Service Awaits Proposal by Agents of Deutschland.

Washington, Nov. 4.—If the agents of the German merchant submarine Deutschland will signify that she is available to carry mail to Germany, the postoffice department will be notified in a formal communication from the German embassy.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, has asked the agents to inform him on the subject. The post office department already has expressed its willingness to accept a proposal to establish a regular undersea mail service.

The embassy's plans are progressing, notwithstanding statements made in New London, by Dr. George Ahrens, an attaché, who intimated it was unlikely the Deutschland would carry United States mail.

New York, Nov. 4.—One thousand eight hundred and twenty merchant ships with an aggregate gross tonnage of approximately 3,328,584 have been sunk by belligerent nations during the twenty-seven months of war ending November 1, according to figures compiled from cable despatches and mail advices and published by the Journal of Commerce.

A table showing the total shipping losses since the war began estimates those of the entente allies at about seventy-five per cent, and those of neutral at nearly eighteen per cent, with Teutonic losses less than seven per cent.

OPERATORS DENY COAL PRICE BOOST

Say Fear of Famine Caused
People to Bid Up Price.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 4.—Officials of two of the biggest independent coal operations in the anthracite fields claimed that they are not boosting prices, and declared that they have no intention of doing so.

Both claimed that $12 coal is a false condition, created by the fear of people that a coal famine will come. These officials are Carlton Jones, general manager of Haddock Coal company, and Evan Jones, manager of the George E. Lee operations.

The fear of a coal famine, these men declared, has been brought about by the activity of speculators who have sought to buy up much of the independent production. While it is admitted that these speculators make some purchases before their scheme was discovered, it is claimed by both independent managers that they are refusing sales to all except their regular agents.

Carlton Jones said: "We are not responsible for any twelve-dollar coal. We have not increased our regular prices a single cent. We have a market for all the coal we can supply. There is no free coal on the market. Speculators, however, have sought to take advantage of this situation by offering greatly increased prices at the mines for much of the output, but we have not encouraged them in the least and have refused to sell."

Mr. Jones declared that the output at the present time is almost about thirty per cent short, but he said that this is not an alarming condition. "This talk of a famine," he said, "is all a myth."

NO PARALYSIS SPECIFIC

Committee of Experts Reports on Its Study of Disease.

Washington, Nov. 4.—"The weight of present opinion inclines to the view that poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) is exclusively a human disease, and is spread by human contact, whatever other causes may be found to contribute to its spread," is the conclusion reached by a committee of the American Public Health Association, made public by the United States public health service.

The report ends: "There is no specific treatment of established value in poliomyelitis. During the persistence of the acute symptoms of the disease the important principles of treatment are rest in bed, symptomatic relief and passive support for the prevention of deformities. The best chances of recovery from residual paralysis demand skillful after-care."

SANDWICH TIPS.

AN excellent filling between thin slices of brown bread is made with a cupful of finely chopped white meat, chicken or veal, and a cup of chopped beef. Both should be boiled tender and chopped very fine. Add salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of ketchup, a dash of cayenne and celery salt. Many like a mild flavor of onion.

Slice four bananas thin and squeeze the juice of half a lemon over them. Let them marinate in this for twenty minutes. Cut the crust from thin oblongs of white bread, spread it with a little thick sweet cream that has been slightly sweetened and arrange the banana slices neatly on the bread.

Take crisp new tomatoes, slice evenly and spread over them finely minced celery and mayonnaise dressing. Place this mixture between triangles of homemade bread.

Add to finely minced chicken, roasted or boiled, an equal amount of Spanish pimientos. Moisten with mayonnaise and spread between thin slices of white or brown bread. A leaf of lettuce may be added if desired.

Take thin slices of raisin bread, butter them and fill with a fig filling prepared as follows: One-half a pound of finely chopped figs, one-third cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of boiling water and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Mix and cook in a double boiler until thick enough to spread.

Tidbits of cooked ham may be cut fine in a chopping machine and used by adding to each cupful of meat a cupful of finely chopped celery, sweet pickle and pepper. Mix with mayonnaise and spread between buns cut in half.

For salmon sandwiches cut slices of white bread, butter them and place layers of boiled salmon on the buttered sides. Spread with tartare sauce, also a layer of shredded lettuce.

Use thin slices of white bread, buttered and cut in heart shape. Between each two slices place a layer of Neufchâtel cheese mixed to a paste with equal quantities of cream and salad dressing and cover with chopped olives.

Buy a pint of freshly roasted peanuts. Remove the shells and skins and chop finely. Add enough melted butter to make the peanuts stick together. Spread between thin slices of bread.

Cut Boston brown bread into thin slices, butter them and fill with a mixture of cream cheese, ground nuts, a little lemon juice and sufficient olive oil to hold the ingredients in a paste.

Chapped Hands

Rough, red, chapped hands are sure to come with cold weather and wind. See that the little folks, and the big folks, too, dry their hands carefully after each washing. Use a good mild soap and warm water, soft water if possible. A coating of good cold cream or camphor ice, well rubbed in, is a good thing for those who have long rides or drives in the wind. At night wash the hands well in warm water, dry thoroughly and apply a lotion made of equal parts of glycerin, rose water and bay rum, with two or three drops of carbolic acid to a six ounce bottle. Your druggist will put this up for you.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS

Dear Editor
What became of John Bumpkins?
I was wondering for a long time.
So he will be running for a job on the Pacific coast?
I hope so, as he is a very capable man.
I am a subscriber to your paper.
I hope that Bumpkins will come back soon.
Yours truly,
Curious.

Dear Editor
What really happened to John Bumpkins, Grace Van Loon's husband?
I am curious.

FROM THE ADJOINING LETTERS IT IS PLAIN THAT THIS HANDSOME ATHLETIC YOUNG MAN HAS NOT BEEN FORGOTTEN. BUT HOW CAN WE FORGET HOW HE WON GRACE'S LOVE, TRIUMPHING OVER THE WEALTHY AND NOBLE VANDERWURST?

AND HOW CAN WE FORGET THAT HE WENT TO THE NON-DIKE SEEKING WEALTH AND HAD NEVER BEEN HEARD OF UNTIL A RUMOR OF HIS DEMISE CULMINATED IN THE ACCEPTANCE OF THE FACT TO GRACE THAT SHE WAS A DASHING YOUNG WIDOW?

NO, DEAR READERS, WE HAVE NOT HEARD ANYTHING ABOUT JOHN BUMPKINS.

HOW CAN WE FORGET HOW HE HELPED WITH OUR FAIR HEROINE WHEN SHE JILTED

BEER ALL GONE, SNAKE MOVES OUT OF KEG.

John Blavetsky of Greensburg, Pa., not only has signed the pledge, but he wants to strike a more positive blow against J. Blavetsky by using a local brewer—all on account of a snake.

It was a real three foot snake that John says he found in the bottom of a keg of beer when he and a party of friends had finished the liquid contents and remarked on its peculiar taste. The snake came out of the bung-hole following the last drop of beer. Blavetsky has two lawyers looking for a statute under which he can recover damages.

St. Paul's chapel of Trinity parish, New York city, has begun the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of its opening. Since its founding St. Paul's chapel has refused to make way for the commercial threads that have hemmed it in on the corner of Broadway and Vesey street. White Eagle in Chicago—Can't Find Men Who Promised $10,000.

Clarence White Eagle, Comanche Indian, is in Chicago at the end of a 13,000 mile walk, for which he said he was to receive a prize of $10,000, but he has been unable since his arrival to find the men who were to pay him the money.

White Eagle and two companions left Chicago Oct. 16, 1915, walked to New York and back to San Francisco, where the companions quit, and the Indian finished the trip alone. He said that he had worn out thirty-five pairs of shoes on the journey.

Your HUDSON SUPER-SIX Will Advance $175

You who now own a Super-Six will gain in the increase--no change in models

Your Super-Six will be worth more next year. And those who buy them must pay $175 more. When cars under way are completed, we must add to the price the added cost of materials. Price advances December 1st.

This is another unexpected attraction in the Hudson Super-Six.

The usual car, the first season, depreciates some 30 per cent. In addition to that, on later models makers often reduced the price. So the one-year drop in value averaged 40 per cent, or more.

The Super-Six motor—almost without friction—hardly depreciates at all. And that's the chief part of a car.

The Super-Six price will advance with materials, for we never shall lessen our standards. So December 1st, when materials on hand are exhausted, the price will advance $175. And you who own the Super-Six will share that added value.

No Pretensions

That very announcement will reveal the strength of the Hudson position. Most weaker cars, we believe, will not dare to advance. Some way will be found to avoid it.

But the Hudson Company, on its Super-Six, will never make pretensions.

Hudson profits, considering our size and output, are very small indeed. They have always been so, and all insiders know it. Our very balance-sheet proves that our margins are minimum.

On December 1st, we start using materials bought under this year's contracts. Prices on all of them have advanced enormously.

On a Hudson-grade car makers can lessen the quality without making the difference apparent at once. But that would be treason to Hudson standards.

So we do—and do frankly—what is obviously necessary. We add the extra cost of materials.

No Advance on Sold Cars

You who have already ordered—either open or enclosed Super-Sixes—will get delivery at the price agreed—up to December 1st.

KING OF COINERS CAUGHT IN WEST

Wilken First One to Duplicate Paper Exactly.

LONG BAFFLED EXPERTS

Secret Service Agents Trained Wilken For Six Years—Caught in Santa Cruz, Cal., After Passing $100,000 in Bad Money—He Makes Full Confession.

A sharper watch than ever before will be kept for counterfeiters because of the success of H. R. Wilken in making spurious currency. Wilken's arrest in Santa Cruz, Cal., has just been announced by William Flynn, chief of the United States secret service. Wilken is the first man known in the long history of warfare on counterfeiters to produce successfully paper in his own mill—paper that, according to experts, is an exact duplicate of the official stock on which money is engraved.

Caught After Six Year Hunt. Wilken was caught after a hunt of six years, during which he continued his unlawful operations. He made such excellent imitations that tellers in national banks, and even experts in subtreasuries of the United States allowed his false notes to slip through their fingers unprotected. In all, Chief Flynn estimated that he had produced and passed at least $100,000 in bad money.

Wilken, according to Chief Flynn, began counterfeiting six years ago with one dollar bills, which he engraved in large quantities. When he discovered that secret service men were after him he skipped about the country, changing his issue to a two dollar bill, which he produced and circulated for several years.

On the 12th of October, after a baffling chase through many states and then many countries had left the government operatives as far from their quarry as ever, a treasury clerk at Washington discovered that two ten dollar federal reserve notes on the Reserve bank of Minneapolis bore the same number. Microscopic examination was necessary before the false could be told from the real. The note from the expertness of the engraving and the skill with which the paper stock had been produced, that it was made by Wilken. One hundred thousand circulars to small merchants all over the country were sent out at once telling them all about Wilken and the note and his method of passing them.

Identified by Eyeglasses. A few days ago a storekeeper in Santa Cruz who had received one of the circulars got one of the notes from a customer. He called for the police and tried to seize the man, who jumped through a plate glass window on the second floor, only to be caught on the sidewalk below.

All marks by which he might be identified had been removed from the man's clothing, but secret service men who hurried to Santa Cruz found that he wore eyeglasses manufactured in New York. From accurate measurements of the curvature of the lenses their ownership was established. Wilken's home in a small New Jersey town was found, and his movements, ending at Santa Cruz, were traced. Then, Mr. Flynn said, he confessed. After that his plant was raided, and the complete counterfeiting outfit, including a miniature paper mill, was seized.

THIS SUBMARINE A MESSENGER OF MERCY

Dreaded German U Boat Rescues Crew of Swedish Steamer Sunk In Storm.

How a German submarine, usually the most dreaded sight to merchant men, proved a messenger of mercy to a Swedish steamer in distress is told by the Overseas News agency.

"The Swedish steamer Arvid," says the agency, "foundered near Bauno during a storm. In spite of the heavy sea running, a German submarine succeeded in rescuing her crew and kept them on board until they could be transferred in safety to the schooner Golden Gate."

The Arvid was a small craft of 178 tons, built in 1887.

A dispatch from Christiania quotes the Aftenpost of that city as reporting the arrival of a German submarine at Honningsvaag, bringing with her the crew of the British steamer Polo, twenty-three men in all.

The Polo, a steamer of 1,800 tons, was laden with coal, from Newcastle to Alexandrovsk, the Russian port on Kola Fjord, northern Finland, and was sunk by the submarine thirty miles off North Cape.

LINER ENDS EXCITING TRIP OF 30,710 MILES

Fire In Hold Was Only One of the City of Savannah's Many Troubles.

Bringing with her a tale of an adventurous voyage of 29,710 miles, the Savannah liner City of Savannah has just arrived at Tompkinsville, near New York. The trip just completed took the 381 foot coastwise vessel twice around the Cape of Good Hope.

The City of Savannah left New York last December on a trip which took her around the Cape of Good Hope to Durban, Rangoon and Bombay.

After leaving Calcutta on May 11 the Savannah sailed through the Indian ocean and was proceeding through the Mozambique channel, between the African coast and the island of Madagascar, when her forehold burst into flames. With a cargo of hides the vessel raced for an East African port. All the time the fumes from the hides were almost unbearable.

At Lourenco Marquez the fire was extinguished after the engine room and the fore parts of the liner were flooded. Then the Savannah settled eight feet in the mud. The water swelled the hides so that there was danger of the vessel's sides bursting. All hands were set to work discharging the cargo, and this was delayed by the breaking of the cranes.

When the hides, especially the elephant hides, were placed on the wharf 5,000 natives protested to the health authorities at the odors, which were given off. When the protest was being considered the Savannah steamed for Cape Town with the hides, which were still valuable. Then she coaled and headed for New York.

BLAMES AUTOS, NOT GERMS, FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Automobiles, not germs, are to blame for the epidemic of infantile paralysis that has swept the country, according to the assertion made by Dr. Thomas F. Hartington, deputy commissioner of labor of Massachusetts, in an address before the annual convention at Cincinnati, O., of the American Public Health association.

"Infantile paralysis is due to chemical agents—namely, gases and fumes given off in the atmosphere by the combustion of oils and fluids used in automobiles," said Dr. Hartington. "Cases of gas and fuel poisoning and cases of infantile paralysis agree in every essential. In infantile paralysis we are dealing with a chemical agent and not a micro-organism. Infants and old persons are more susceptible to the malady. Although infantile paralysis has been epidemic for years, its prevalence in epidemic form dates from the introduction and wide use of the automobile."

FINDS SON MOURNED AS DEAD FOR FOURTEEN YEARS

Clarence Hecker Had Also Been Taught to Believe Mother Long Since Passed Away.

Carried away by his father fourteen years ago, following a separation of his parents when he was but seven years old, fate played an important part at Dayton, O., in the reunion of Clarence Hecker with his mother, who years ago mourned him as dead.

It was while working in a munition factory at Elmira, N. Y., that Hecker received a telegram from his father conveying the news of his grandfather's death and went to Lewisburg, O., to attend the funeral. All these years the boy had been taught that his mother was dead, and while at Lewisburg he learned that his mother was living in Dayton. His mother, after continuous search for her son, had long ago given him up as dead or lost.

Hecker went to Dayton and met his mother. She probably will return to Elmira with her son.

A Girl of Little Italy

By F. A. MITCHEL

The court was assembled to try Antonio Celli, an inhabitant of the Italian quarter in New York. He was accused of having murdered Otis Campbell, a settlement worker who had endeavored to elevate the condition of Italians. Antonio was of the lowest class, had no education and had come to America from Naples. Whoever has visited that city is aware of the condition of the lower classes there. But they are not responsible for that condition. Hundreds of years of tyranny exercised by foreign nations have made them what they are. Happily they are now free and are beginning to improve.

Campbell during his Samaritan labors had met Marina Dornli, a little girl fifteen years old born in America of Italian parents. Marina made artificial flowers. Antonio, who was double her age, had asked her parents for her, but they had not consented to give her to him, since he was not engaged in any regular work and they distrusted him. Nevertheless Antonio determined to have the girl and hoped to persuade her to marry him when Campbell appeared on the scene.

Though Campbell was perfectly circumspect to Marina in his efforts in her behalf and that of other persons of her class this did not prevent her giving him her heart. One day when Antonio went to the house where she was making artificial flowers he saw Campbell standing before the table at which she was working. At the moment she was putting in the buttonhole of Campbell's coat an artificial flower.

"What kind is it?" asked Campbell.

"A rose."

"What, a blue rose? There is no such flower."

Marina laughed.

"I made it purposely for you," she said.

Campbell thanked her and turned away. His mind was occupied with his work, and he did not notice the expression on Marina's face, an expression denoting adoration for him. But Antonio saw it, and the devil which had been at his elbow since his birth straightway entered into him.

Early one morning Campbell's body was found in an alley. A physician who examined it said that he had been dead about five hours. There was no clew whatever to the murderer.

Marina had not seen Antonio watching her when she gave Campbell the artificial rose, though nothing prevented her except that she was wrapped in the settlement worker. Antonio had withdrawn without her having been conscious of his presence. But after this there was something in his bearing that excited her curiosity.

Antonio proposed that she should marry him without her parents' consent. She gave no response for a time, but from that moment began to give evidence of encouragement. Her parents suspected that she would throw herself away on a man they disliked and reproved her. They also treated Antonio coldly. This encouraged him to believe that Marina would be his without their consent, for as they turned against him she appeared to favor him.

One day Antonio, while drinking in a wine shop with some friends, told them that he was to marry Marina the next day, and he wished them to be present at the wedding. One of these men went to her father and told him what Antonio had said. He at once shut up Marina under lock and key.

The next day Antonio, instead of being married, was arrested, charged with the murder of Otis Campbell.

"There," said her father, "you see from what a fate we have saved you. The man you would have married to-day is a criminal."

Marina was released from confinement. She made no mention of Antonio, she did her daily work mechanically, but there was a bright look about her which her associates attributed to having been about to marry a man who, in the appointed wedding day was taken to jail. But Marina said nothing. She had told him of her love for Campbell and even he had been true to her.

When the trial came of Marina was present as a witness. After the preliminaries she was called to the stand by the prosecuting attorney. He asked her if she had known Campbell; she brought out from her no recollection of his kindness to her and others of her class. "Did you love him?" asked the attorney.

"With all my heart." There was a stir on the part of those in court who knew her. "Did he love you?" "No." The prosecutor then brought out the relations between her and the accused with the fact that she had promised to marry Antonio the day he was arrested. Then he produced an artificial rose of a blue color. "Did you ever see this rose before?" he asked. "Yes. I gave it to Signor Campbell. When did you see it next?" "Antonio gave it to me. He wished me to marry him, and I agreed to do so if he would bring me this rose that I had given Signor Campbell." This was all the testimony adduced. It was not enough to send the prisoner to the chair, but it sufficed to send him to the penitentiary for life. The only evidence against him had been procured by the adroitness, the patience, the reticence of a girl fifteen years old.
